Foreword

The National Council for Curriculum and Assessment, mandated to develop curriculum and supplementary materials for pre-tertiary institutions, has incorporated global citizenship as one of the six core competencies to be cultivated in learners from kindergarten to senior high schools. This resource pack, titled “Teacher’s Resource Pack on GCED Integration into Classroom Activities for Primary Four to Six Teachers,” serves as a supplementary tool to aid teachers in effectively implementing the curriculum. Its purpose is to assist primary four to six teachers to integrate global citizenship skills and values into their daily teaching and learning activities.

This resource pack is the result of a collaborative effort involving the Ministry of Education (MoE) in Ghana, the National Council for Curriculum and Assessment (NaCCA) and the Asia-Pacific Centre of Education for International Understanding (APCEIU) under the auspices of UNESCO. This collaboration aims to promote Global Citizenship Education (GCED) in Ghanaian schools through the Global Citizenship Education Curriculum Development and Integration (CDI) Project (2022-2024).

The resource pack draws inspiration from various international and national policy documents, including UNESCO’s Agenda 2030 Framework for Action, Ghana’s Education Sector Plan (2018-2030), the National Pre-Tertiary Education Curriculum Framework (NPECF, 2018), the National Pre-Tertiary Learning Assessment Framework (NPLAF, 2020), the Ghanaian national curriculum, UNESCO’s Global Citizenship Education: Topics and Learning Objectives (2015), and global best practices. It’s important to emphasize that significant effort has been made to adapt international best practices to suit the specific needs and social context of Ghana.

The resource pack provides a comprehensive overview of GCED concepts and values, outlines the conceptual framework for GCED integration in schools, and identifies entry points for GCED integration. Five key themes—Human Rights, Sustainability, Respect for Diversity, Peace and Conflict Resolution, and Globalization and Social Justice—are further subdivided into sub-themes, learning outcomes, and learning indicators. Additionally, the resource pack offers GCED exemplars, including transformative activity exemplars and lesson plan exemplars for subjects like Our World and Our People, History, and English Language. It also presents strategies for the effective delivery of GCED. Teachers are encouraged to adapt the material to suit their specific contexts, including learning environments, the needs and interests of learners, and available resources.

The “Teacher Resource Pack on GCED Integration into Instruction for Primary Four to Six Teachers” is expected to serve as a guiding tool for teachers, enabling them to translate global citizenship skills and values into transformative learning experiences. This will empower learners to take both individual and collective actions to address local and global issues.

NaCCA is most grateful to all those who contributed their time, expertise, passion and resources to make this endeavour a reality. We would like to express our sincere appreciation to the Asia-Pacific Centre of Education for International Understanding (APCEIU) for their visionary partnership and financial support that paved the way for the GCED CDI project (2022-2024). Your commitment to global education and cross-cultural understanding has been the driving force behind this transformative initiative. Special acknowledgement goes to the Honourable Minister for Education for embracing and endorsing this GCED promotion agenda in Ghanaian schools.

Our heartfelt thanks go out to the Ministry of Education, the Ghana Commission for UNESCO, Institute for Educational Planning and Administration (IEPA), the National Commission for Civic Education (NCCE), the Ghana Education Service (GES), and all the institutions and individuals that contributed to the collaborative discussions that informed the development of this document. Your input and perspectives have enriched the content and ensured that the aspirations of diverse stakeholders are duly represented.

We also extend our gratitude to the participants who actively engaged in the workshops, discussions, and activities that were integral to the creation of this document. Your enthusiasm, insights, and willingness to share your knowledge have been instrumental in shaping the vision and practical implementation of GCED within Ghana's educational framework. Special acknowledgment is due those who participated in person and online, enriching our discussions with a wealth of experiences and viewpoints. Your dedication to education and commitment to creating a brighter future for our youth are truly commendable.

We specially recognise the technical input from the NaCCA GCED Technical Team: Genevieve Mensah, Reginald Quartey, Bridget Anku and Stephen Acquah under the leadership of Mr. Matthew Owusu (Deputy Director-General, Technical Services) and supervision of Prof. Edward Appiah (Ex-Director-General) and Prof. Yayra Dzakadzie, (Director-General of NaCCA).

We extend our deep appreciation to Genevieve Mensah, the Project Technical Lead, for her unwavering dedication to exploring and understanding the landscape of GCED integration within different educational systems. Your insights have been invaluable in shaping the strategies and approaches outlined in this document.

Lastly, we acknowledge the educators, administrators, and policymakers who will take the ideas and strategies presented in this document and bring them to life in classrooms across the nation. Your dedication to nurturing informed, globally aware citizens is an essential contribution to the sustainable development of our society. As we move forward with the shared goal of fostering global citizenship and creating a more inclusive and interconnected world, let us carry forward the spirit of collaboration and determination that characterised the development of this document.

Acknowledgement

Since 2016, the Asia-Pacific Centre of Education for International Understanding (APCEIU) under the auspices of UNESCO has been working on the Global Citizenship Education (GCED) Curriculum Development and Integration (CDI) Project with several countries in the Asia-Pacific region. This initiative aims to incorporate Global Citizenship Education (GCED) into national curricula and share it worldwide.

APCEIU expresses great pleasure in welcoming Ghana as a partner country for the 4th Round (2022-2024) of the GCED CDI Project. Ghana has been a proactive and passionate partner country in the GCED CDI Project, truly standing out as an excellent example in this initiative. Ghana's unique strengths and expertise have greatly contributed to the success of the project, fostering the development of educational resources for GCED.

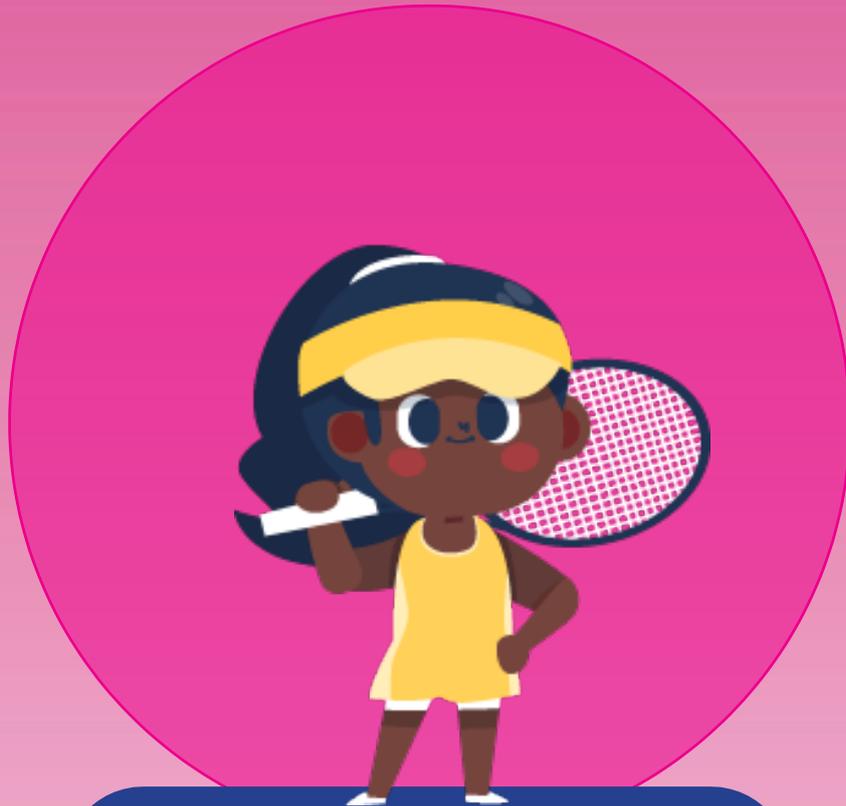

We are especially pleased with the development of the Teacher Resource Pack on GCED Integration into Instruction and A Guide for Trainers on Global Citizenship Education Integration into Instruction, which have been created with great care to empower the capacity of educators in Ghana. The five key GCED themes in Ghana—Human Rights, Sustainability, Respect for Diversity, Conflict and Peacebuilding, and Globalization and Social Justice—align with national values and culture. These are essential for nurturing a generation that respects human dignity, values sustainability, and works toward peace and equity in an interconnected world.

APCEIU extends its heartfelt appreciation to the National Council for Curriculum and Assessment (NaCCA), with special recognition to Prof. Yayra Dzakadzie, the Director-General, and Mr. Matthew Owusu, the Deputy Director-General, for their outstanding leadership. We also recognize the invaluable supervision of Prof. Edward Appiah, the former Director-General. Our deepest gratitude goes to the members of the GCED Core Team, including Ms. Genevieve Mensah and Mr. Reginald Quartey, as well as the Material Development Team, whose dedication and expertise were vital in the creation of these two valuable resources.

We sincerely hope that the Teacher Resource Pack on GCED Integration into Instruction and A Guide for Trainers on Global Citizenship Education Integration into Instruction, tailored to the Ghanaian context, will serve as effective tools and pedagogical guidelines for teachers and trainers to implement the GCED in their classrooms. We also hope that a broader range of stakeholders in Ghana, including government and education officials, will engage in the promotion and integration of GCED. Therefore, students will develop into inclusive and open-minded global citizens, equipped with practical and critical thinking skills, as well as a collaborative spirit. We look forward to Ghana's ongoing contributions to advancing GCED both nationally and globally.

BACKGROUND

Section One

BACKGROUND

The world is changing. The dynamics in the global system have revealed the inter-connectedness, interdependence, and inter-relationship among countries. This gives credence to the saying that “no country is an island”. The advancement in technology, sophistication in the media space as well as migration presents an opportunity for people to constantly interact with others from different parts of the world with different ideologies, belief systems, values, and aspirations. For instance, according to the World Migration Report (2020), 3.6% of the global population is involved in external migration by 2020.

Events such as the Global Financial Crisis which began in the US housing market and spread across the United States and to the rest of the world (mid-2007 to early 2009), the continuous education on global warming and climate change, the multiplier effect of conflicts and wars across the globe and more recently, the advent of Covid-19 bringing the world to a standstill leading to the closure of schools for over 168 million children (UNICEF, 2021). This is an indication of how inter-related events in one country continuously affect other countries.

These events that have been with us for decades have been the focus of the global education agenda for a long time. There has been a considerable effort to ensure that the idea of global citizenship becomes central in the global education agenda. Figure 1 presents the historical trajectory of global citizenship education.

The adoption of a global focus on education through the SDGs implied that the tenets of Global Citizenship Education reflect in the Ghana Education Strategic Plan(ESP) (2018-2030). Hence, SDG indicator 4.7.1 is one of the guiding principles in the development of the ESP (2018-2030). SDG 4.7.1. as outlined in the Ghana Education Sector Plan (2018-2030) indicates:

Extent to which (i) global citizenship education and (ii) education for sustainable development (including gender equality and human rights) are mainstreamed at all levels in: (a) national education policies; (b) curricula; (c) teacher education; and (d) student assessment.

The National Pre-Tertiary Curriculum Framework further underscored the need to inculcate the tenets of Global Citizenship Education in Ghanaian students. As part of the vision of the curriculum, it is stated that:

“It is also important to ensure that Ghana’s children have the same opportunities or better learning opportunities as children in other parts of the world and become global citizens as a result.” (p. 18)

Again, one of the six core competencies has been devoted to the promotion of Global Citizenship Education — Cultural Identity and Global Citizenship. This is further emphasised on Page 28 where specific competencies are developed to cut across all the levels at pre-tertiary.

These are further reflected in specific subjects such as History and Our World and Our People. The attempt to inculcate the ideals of global citizenship in the learner requires specific pedagogies, practices, and instructional techniques that reflect the three domains of Global Citizenship Education – Cognitive, Socio-Emotional, and Behavioural. There is, therefore, the need to develop a document that serves as a guide to teachers in their attempt to operationalise the vision of the curriculum and the focus of global education.

The Purpose of the GCED Teacher Resource Pack

The general purpose of the GCED Teacher Resource Pack is to help teachers incorporate Global Citizenship Education in their instructions. Specifically, the resource pack is aimed at:

1. providing a broader understanding of the concept of GCED to the teacher
2. equipping teachers to develop the skills to assess socio-emotional and behavioural traits.
3. equipping the teacher with various strategies for GCED delivery in Ghanaian schools
4. equipping the teacher with transformative pedagogical knowledge on delivering GCED lessons
5. building the capacity of teachers in assessing GCED learning outcomes.
6. building the capacity of teachers to become agents of GCED in the school and the community
7. providing the teacher with GCED lesson exemplars to guide the teacher in preparing lessons.

Intended Users

The document is designed to be used by:

1. Pre-service teachers
2. In-service teachers
3. NaCCA officials
4. National Teaching Council (NTC) officials (Standards and Compliance Unit)
5. National Schools Inspectorate Authority (NaSIA) school inspectors
6. Tutors and lecturers of teacher training institutions
7. Other education officials

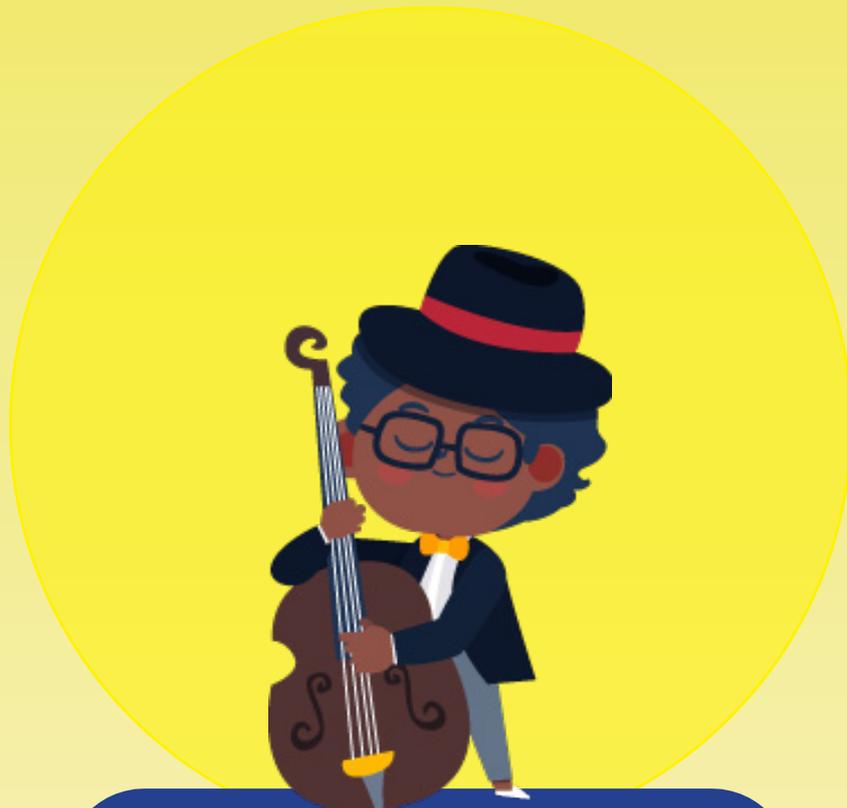

Components of the GCED Teacher Resource Pack

The resource pack is divided into five sections as shown in Table 1.

GLOBAL CITIZENSHIP EDUCATION (GCED)

Section Two

GLOBAL CITIZENSHIP EDUCATION (GCED)

What does it mean to be a global citizen?

According to UNESCO (2013), a global citizen is an individual who “thinks and acts for a more just, peaceful, and sustainable world.” The individual also identifies as a member of a global community and takes action to address global issues. The Global Citizens’ Initiative (n.d. para 1) describes a global citizen as “someone who sees himself or herself as being part of an emerging world community and whose actions help define this community’s values and practices.” For Oxfam, a global citizen is “someone who is aware of and understands the wider world – and their place in it. They are a citizen of the world. They take an active role in their community and work with others to make our planet more peaceful, sustainable and fairer.”

A global citizen recognises that the challenges we face such as poverty, inequality, climate change and human rights violations are interconnected and require collective efforts to solve. They are actively engaged in global affairs, whether through advocacy, activism, volunteering or supporting organisations and initiatives that work towards social and environmental progress. Such persons strive to promote peace, justice and equality on a global scale and often use their voices, resources, and influence to raise awareness and support causes that align with their values.

Being a global citizen means embracing a sense of shared responsibility for the well-being of the planet and its inhabitants, recognising that our actions and choices can have an impact beyond our immediate surroundings. It’s about fostering a sense of empathy, inclusivity and understanding towards people from different cultures, backgrounds, and nations.

In brief, being a global citizen has a sense of belonging to the global community and a common sense of humanity, with its presumed members experiencing solidarity and collective identity among themselves and collective responsibility at the global level (UNESCO 2017).

What is global citizenship?

According to UNESCO (2015), global citizenship refers to a sense of belonging to a broader community and common humanity. It emphasises political, economic, social, and cultural interdependency and interconnectedness between the local, the national and the global.

Oxfam views Global citizenship as a term used to describe the social, environmental, and economic actions taken by individuals and communities who recognise that every person is a citizen of the world. Citizenship in GCED describes the values and behaviours that make one a responsible member of society who is aware of, and active in addressing global issues.

What is global citizenship education?

Global Citizenship Education (GCED) is a transformative education that can develop knowledge, skills, values, and attitudes that students need to make a more just, peaceful, and sustainable world. It is based on the universal principles of human rights, gender equality, non-discrimination, non-violence, and respect for all (APCEIU 2018).

UNESCO (2018) defines Global Citizenship Education (GCED) as an educational approach that nurtures respect and solidarity in learners to build a sense of belonging to a common humanity and help them become responsible and active global citizens in building inclusive and peaceful societies. Global Citizenship Education (GCED) is also explained as an educational approach that aims to cultivate a sense of global awareness, responsibility, and engagement among individuals. It emphasises the understanding of global issues, appreciation for cultural diversity, and the development of skills and values necessary for active participation in a globalised world.

The revised 1974 Recommendation on Education for Peace and Human Rights, International Understanding, Cooperation, Fundamental Freedoms, Global Citizenship and Sustainable Development (UNESCO 2023) presents global citizenship education as a transformative education that empowers people to reflect critically and become agents of change. The revised Recommendation places great emphasis on the critical role of global citizenship education in building a more peaceful and just world in these times of war, climate crisis, and polarization.

Hence, GCED is a strategy to help learners access opportunities as well as navigate the challenges presented by this diverse and interconnected world of increasingly porous borders.

Global citizenship education (GCED) is therefore a form of civic learning that involves learners' active participation in projects that address global issues of a social, political, economic, or environmental nature.

In summary, global citizenship education refers to an educational approach that creates a sense of belonging to a broader community and common humanity. It emphasises that political, economic, social, and cultural issues are interdependent and interconnected locally, nationally, and globally.

Why Global Citizenship Education?

As the world becomes more interconnected and complex, it is essential to equip the next generation with the necessary skills, attitude, values, and knowledge to navigate the challenges they will face. This entails preparing the young generation to take proactive measures in addressing global issues such as climate change, conflict, poverty, equity, and sustainability (UNESCO, 2015). Additionally, it is worthwhile for the Ghanaian learner to develop 21st century skills and global competencies that enable him/her to effectively engage and thrive in both the Ghanaian and the global economy. For the young generation to be empowered to resolve local and global challenges and to become proactive contributors to a more peaceful, tolerant, inclusive, and secure world, GCED must be prioritised (Miranda, 2018; Childhood Education International, n.d).

Moreover, due to new challenges and significant changes in the education landscape, UNESCO Member States have changed the 1974 Recommendation into the Recommendation on Education for Peace and Human Rights, International Understanding, Cooperation, Fundamental Freedoms, Global Citizenship and Sustainable Development (UNESCO 2023). The revised Recommendation which was adopted at the 42nd session of the General Conference of UNESCO held in Paris in November 2023, recommends global citizenship education as a transformative education that empowers people to reflect critically and become agents of change. The revised Recommendation places great emphasis on the critical role of global citizenship education in building a more peaceful and just world in these times of war, climate crisis, and polarization.

Below are some reasons why GCED is important to the Ghanaian learner:

GCED aims at:

1. equipping learners with an understanding of “global ties, relations and connections, and a commitment to the collective good.”
2. fostering the “skills, values and knowledge to empower them as global citizens through the practice and promotion of tolerance, human rights, social justice and acceptance of diversity.”
3. allowing people to co-exist within diverse spaces and “[seek] to fulfil their individual and cultural interest and [achieve] their inalienable rights.”
4. fostering a sense of belonging to a global community, promoting respect for human rights and dignity, encouraging sustainable development, and fostering peace and social justice. It aims to equip individuals with the knowledge, skills, attitudes, and values necessary to understand complex global issues, engage in dialogue and cooperation with people from diverse backgrounds, and take action to address global challenges.
5. empowering learners of all ages to understand both local and global issues to become active promoters of more peaceful, tolerant, inclusive, secure, and sustainable societies.
6. helping to draw on globally oriented learning resources that help learners in understanding how they fit in the world in relation to their local circumstances.
7. empowering learners to become informed, compassionate, and socially responsible global citizens who can contribute to addressing global challenges and promoting a more just and sustainable world. It goes beyond traditional academic subjects and focuses on the development of key competencies such as critical thinking, empathy, intercultural understanding, and social responsibility.
8. developing a global perspective: global citizenship education helps learners develop a broader understanding of the world and the interconnectedness of different societies and cultures. It encourages them to think beyond their immediate environment and consider the global challenges we face as a collective.
9. fostering cultural awareness and empathy: By learning about different cultures, traditions, and perspectives, learners develop empathy and respect for others. Global citizenship education promotes diversity, inclusivity, and tolerance, which are crucial in an increasingly interconnected and diverse world.

10. promoting critical thinking and problem-solving skills: global citizenship education equips learners with critical thinking skills to analyse complex global issues. It encourages them to question assumptions, seek multiple perspectives, and evaluate evidence. These skills are essential for addressing global challenges and finding innovative solutions.
11. encouraging responsible and active citizenship: global citizenship education aims to empower learners to become active participants in their communities and the world at large. It promotes values such as social justice, human rights, sustainability, and peace building. By understanding their rights and responsibilities as global citizens, learners are motivated to take action and make positive contributions to society.
12. preparing for a globalised workforce: In an increasingly globalised economy, employers seek individuals with global competence. Global citizenship education equips learners with the knowledge, skills, and attitudes needed to thrive in a global workforce. It enhances their intercultural communication skills, adaptability, and collaboration across borders.
13. addressing global challenges: global issues like climate change, poverty, inequality, and conflicts require collective action. Global citizenship education instils a sense of responsibility and agency in learners to contribute to sustainable development and work towards a more just and peaceful world.

In summary, GCED fosters cultural competence, critical thinking, empathy, and a sense of responsibility toward global issues (Andreotti, 2011). It empowers individuals to become agents of positive change, engaging in civic participation and advocating for social justice (Schattle, 2008). By integrating GCED into the pre-tertiary curriculum in Ghana, teachers nurture learners' global competencies and prepare them to succeed in an increasingly globalised world (UNESCO, 2015). Additionally, by integrating GCED into the curriculum, teachers can prepare learners to be active, responsible, and compassionate local and global citizens who are equipped to address the pressing challenges of our time.

Ghana GCED Conceptual Framework

The Ghana GCED Conceptual Framework is rooted in the globally accepted five broad themes of GCED. These themes are thoughtfully harmonised with the national values and culture of the Ghanaian people. This harmonisation enables the framework to reflect the deep-seated beliefs and aspirations of the Ghanaian populace, which have been passed down through generations via the educational system.

While the National Curriculum already incorporates elements of GCED, the conceptual framework underscores a deliberate and conscientious effort to empower teachers to prioritise the teaching of these GCED themes in their daily instructional activities. By seamlessly integrating GCED into the curriculum, Ghanaian educators assume the role of facilitators in cultivating Global Citizen Learners, thus exemplifying the ultimate goal of GCED within Ghanaian schools.

Overview of the Ghana GCED Themes

Human Rights

GCED emphasises the importance of understanding what human rights are. Human rights are the fundamental rights and freedoms to which all individuals are entitled, regardless of their nationality, race, gender, religion, or other characteristics. These rights are enshrined in international documents such as the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) and various international treaties. GCED focuses on instilling values and principles related to human rights, such as equality, dignity, non-discrimination, and respect for diversity. It encourages learners to recognise the inherent worth of every person and the importance of treating others with fairness and compassion. GCED aims to raise awareness about different aspects of human rights, including civil, political, economic, social, and cultural rights. Learners are encouraged to understand the historical context, significance, and relevance of these rights in today's interconnected world.

Human rights education within GCED promotes social justice by addressing issues of inequality, discrimination and injustice. It encourages critical thinking and analysis of how systemic injustices and violations occur and persist.

GCED goes beyond mere knowledge and seeks to empower individuals to take action to protect and promote human rights. This can involve advocating for human rights, participating in activism, volunteering, or engaging in social and political change efforts.

Human rights under GCED are not limited to a specific geographic location or context. It encourages learners to understand that human rights are universal, and that global interconnectedness requires a global perspective when addressing human rights issues.

The Human Rights theme under Global Citizenship Education is an essential component that equips individuals with the knowledge, values, and skills to understand, protect, and promote human rights on a global scale. It encourages active engagement and a commitment to social justice and equality for all people, regardless of their backgrounds or circumstances.

Sustainability

GCED introduces learners to the concept of sustainability, which involves meeting the needs of the present generation without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs. Sustainability encompasses environmental, economic, and social dimensions.

The environmental aspect of sustainability is a central focus within GCED. It explores topics such as climate change, biodiversity conservation, water and other resource management, pollution control, and sustainable agriculture. Learners are encouraged to understand the impact of human activities on the environment and the importance of responsible use of resources.

GCED acknowledges the connection between economic development and sustainability. It emphasises the need for economic systems that balance growth with ecological and social considerations. Topics may include fair trade, responsible consumption, circular economies, and the role of businesses in promoting sustainability. Social sustainability within GCED covers issues related to social justice, equity, and inclusivity. It addresses topics like poverty reduction, access to education and healthcare, gender equality, and the promotion of diverse and inclusive societies. Social sustainability recognises that a just and equitable society is a crucial component of overall sustainability. GCED emphasises the interconnectedness of environmental, economic, and social issues. It encourages learners to see the relationships and interdependencies between these dimensions and how they contribute to global challenges like climate change, inequality, and poverty.

The sustainability theme in GCED ultimately seeks to develop responsible global citizens who understand their role in promoting sustainability. It encourages active engagement in local and global efforts to address environmental and social challenges.

In summary, the Sustainability theme under Global Citizenship Education equips learners with the knowledge, values, and skills needed to address pressing global challenges related to environmental conservation, economic development, and social equity. It emphasises the interconnectedness of these issues and fosters a sense of responsibility toward creating a more sustainable and equitable world for present and future generations.

Respect for Diversity

This is a fundamental theme within Global Citizenship Education (GCED). It plays a pivotal role in helping individuals understand and appreciate the richness of human differences, fostering tolerance, empathy, and a sense of belonging in an increasingly interconnected world. GCED introduces learners to the concept of diversity, emphasising that it encompasses a wide range of dimensions, including but not limited to race, ethnicity, nationality, religion, gender, sexual orientation, age, ability, socioeconomic status, and cultural background. Diversity is seen as a source of strength and enrichment for societies. GCED encourages learners to develop cultural awareness and sensitivity by exploring the customs, traditions, beliefs, and values of different cultures around the world. It promotes the idea that cultural diversity contributes to a vibrant global community.

The Respect for Diversity theme emphasises the importance of social inclusion and the elimination of discrimination, prejudice, and stereotypes. It encourages individuals to reflect on their own biases and prejudices and take steps to promote inclusivity and equity. Ultimately, Respect for Diversity in GCED aims to develop active and responsible global citizens who advocate for social justice, inclusivity and diversity in their communities and beyond. The Respect for Diversity theme in Global Citizenship Education encourages individuals to embrace and celebrate human differences, fostering a sense of unity and interconnectedness while promoting social justice, inclusivity, and empathy. It recognises that respecting and valuing diversity is essential for building a more harmonious and equitable world.

Conflict and Peace Building

This is a crucial component of Global Citizenship Education (GCED). It focuses on equipping individuals with the knowledge, skills, and values needed to understand, prevent, and resolve conflicts while promoting a culture of peace and cooperation on a global scale. GCED introduces learners to the concept of peace, emphasising that it goes beyond the absence of violence and conflict. Peace is seen as a positive and holistic state that encompasses harmony, justice, equity, and the well-being of individuals and communities.

The theme encourages learners to understand the root causes of conflicts, both at local and global levels. It emphasises the importance of critical thinking and analysis to identify underlying issues such as inequality, discrimination, resource scarcity, and political instability. GCED provides tools and techniques for conflict resolution and mediation, emphasising non-violent and constructive approaches. It teaches negotiation, communication, and problem-solving skills to address conflicts peacefully. Conflict and Peace Building in GCED aims to empower individuals to become active global citizens who contribute to peace building efforts in their communities and beyond. It emphasises the role of civic engagement and advocacy.

In summary, the Conflict and Peace Building theme in Global Citizenship Education equips individuals with the knowledge and skills needed to resolve conflicts, foster peace, and promote social justice on a global scale. It recognises the interconnectedness of conflicts in an increasingly interdependent world and emphasises proactive approaches to peace building.

Globalisation and Social Justice

This is a significant component of Global Citizenship Education (GCED). It explores the complex interplay between globalisation processes and the pursuit of social justice at the local, national, and global levels. GCED introduces learners to the concept of globalisation, emphasising that it involves the increasing interconnectedness and interdependence of societies and economies across the globe. It includes the flow of goods, services, information, culture, and people.

Social justice is a fundamental aspect of this theme. GCED defines social justice as the fair and equitable distribution of resources, opportunities, and rights within societies. It promotes the idea that all individuals should have equal access to education, healthcare, employment, and political participation.

GCED explores how globalisation processes can both advance and hinder social justice. It examines how globalisation can exacerbate inequalities, but also how it can provide opportunities for economic development, education, and cultural exchange.

The Globalisation and Social Justice theme in Global Citizenship Education equips individuals with the knowledge, values, and skills needed to navigate the complexities of globalisation while advocating for social justice on a global scale. It encourages critical thinking about the impact of globalisation on societies and the role of individuals in promoting a fair and equitable world.

GCED THEME	SUB-THEME	LEARNING OUTCOMES	LEARNING INDICATORS
Human Rights	Rights and Responsibilities	Cultivate empathy and respect for the rights of others, demonstrating an understanding that everyone is entitled to their rights and should be treated with fairness and equality.	Identify various rights and their corresponding responsibilities.
		Develop a sense of social justice, recognising and challenging instances of unfairness or discrimination, and advocating for equal rights and opportunities for all community members.	Show empathy and respect for the well-being and rights of others.
	Citizenship and Participation	Practice respectful and inclusive behaviour towards individuals from diverse backgrounds, cultures, and perspectives, valuing the contributions of all community members.	Demonstrates awareness of community needs and expresses a willingness to contribute to their improvement
		Cultivate a sense of civic responsibility, understanding that active participation and engagement in their community is essential for the betterment of society.	Participates voluntarily in community service activities or projects.
	Health	Demonstrate personal hygiene skills to prevent illness and disease	Apply personal hygiene skills to prevent illnesses and diseases and assist others in doing the same
		Identify key areas to reduce pandemic situations.	Use experience and the sense of responsibility to identify key areas to reduce national pandemic situations.

	Eradication of Poverty	Collaborate to address issues that put people in challenging situations to help eradicate poverty for their sustainability.	Share and manage resources with the less privileged
		Show empathy towards the marginalised in the community	Empathise with the less privileged and support them
	Right to Education	Share experiences on the impact of education on the community and the nation at large.	Promote educational programmes for lifelong learning.
		Advocate for equal access to education	Support the agenda for equal educational opportunities for all, regardless of gender, socioeconomic background, ethnicity, or disability.
	Freedom of Expression	Respect diverse opinions and motivate others to express themselves freely.	Encourage open dialogue and respectful conversations
		Use the media for the right purpose	Promote media literacy and critical thinking

GCED THEME	SUB-THEME	LEARNING OUTCOMES	LEARNING INDICATORS
Respect for Diversity	Cultural Diversity	Appreciate and respect the different cultural groups	Engage in activities (i.e. tolerance, open-mindedness, curiosity) that promote cultural diversity.
			Celebrate cultural diversity through collaborative projects that promote sustainable practices and cultural preservation.
			Share real life experiences of cultural diversity encounters (e.g. food, festivals, dances, clothes etc.)
			Reflect and talk about ways to overcome negative cultural encounters
	Workplace Diversity	Accept workplace diversity as a vehicle for local, national and global development	Practise activities that encourage workplace harmony and discourage workplace discrimination
	Religious Diversity	Show respect and sensitivity towards diverse religious beliefs, customs, and traditions,	Actively participate in respectful discussions and dialogues that explore the intersections and interactions between different religious perspectives.
	Moral Diversity	Identify connections between moral principles and social justice issues showcasing an understanding of how moral diversity impacts societal challenges.	Demonstrate an understanding of how moral diversity impacts societal challenges.

	Political Diversity	Cultivate empathy and respect for individuals with different political beliefs and ideologies.	Show genuine interest and understanding of the perspectives of others without judgment or prejudice about different political beliefs.
		Promote self-awareness and self-regulation in expressing emotions during political interactions.	Practice perspective-taking to understand the differing viewpoints and emotions of others.

GCED THEME	SUB-THEME	LEARNING OUTCOMES	LEARNING INDICATORS
Sustainability	Economy	Develop awareness of the impact of consumption and production choices on the environment, society, and economy.	Engage in group activities to develop and implement sustainable solutions to economic projects
			Explore good production/ consumption practices
		Demonstrate basic financial skills, such as budgeting, saving, and making informed financial decisions.	Show respect for the value of money and the effort required to earn it
	Ecosystem	Accept and respect the importance of biodiversity and the interdependence of living organisms within ecosystems.	Use observation and data collection techniques to develop an appreciation of biodiversity in local environments.
			Demonstrate awareness of the environmental impact of human activities on natural resources.	Show empathy towards the effects of resource depletion and pollution on ecosystems and the well-being of other living organisms.
			Engage in projects and initiatives that promote sustainability and raise awareness about the responsible use of natural resources.	Advocate for sustainable behaviours and explain the importance of responsible resource management to others.
	Climate change	Demonstrate empathy and compassion to affected communities suffering as a result of climate change	Reflect on personal feelings and attitudes towards affected communities and the impact of climate change.

GCED THEME	SUB-THEME	LEARNING OUTCOMES	LEARNING INDICATORS
Conflict and Peace Building	Conflict Resolution	Apply problem-solving strategies to reach peaceful resolutions.	Demonstrate how conflicts can affect relationships and well-being.
			Use problem-solving strategies such as avoidance, collaboration, compromising or finding win-win solutions to resolve conflicts
		Demonstrate effective communication and negotiation skills in conflict resolution	Use appropriate verbal (tone and language) and non-verbal (eye contact and body language) communication skills to resolve conflict.
			Demonstrate effective communication skills in resolving conflicts (classroom, school or neighbourhood).
	Attitudes and Behaviour	Promote empathy, respect and open-mindedness in listening to different viewpoints for positive coexistence	Demonstrate empathy by understanding and acknowledging others' feelings during conflicts.
			Take personal responsibility for one's actions during conflicts and their consequences.
			Use non-violent and constructive ways to express frustration or anger.

	Social Reconciliation	Promote forgiveness and healing as key components of social reconciliation	Demonstrate the need to forgive and let go of negative feelings.
			Use proactive steps to prevent conflicts and promote harmony.
	Peace Education and Advocacy	Promote active advocacy for peaceful solutions.	Identify opportunities for promoting peace within the school or local community

Globalisation and Social Justice	Economic Globalisation	Contribute positively to the global economy, such as supporting fair trade, promoting ethical business practices, and advocating for social justice.	Reflect on personal choices and actions related to the global economy, considering their impact on others and the planet.
			Demonstrate a willingness to adapt behaviour and make positive changes to contribute to a more fair and sustainable global economy.
			Reflect on activities that support fair trade, advocating for ethical business practices, or engaging in initiatives that promote social justice.
	Cultural Globalisation.	Engage in activities that promote the preservation of cultural traditions, customs, and languages	Actively participate in cultural celebrations and events that showcase and preserve traditional practices, customs, and rituals.
			Engage in hands-on experiences with cultural artefacts, such as creating crafts or playing traditional instruments.
			Participate in community-led initiatives aimed at preserving cultural heritage and traditions.

		Recognise the influence of cultural globalisation on local communities and the wider Global Society.	Demonstrate empathy towards individuals from different cultural backgrounds and respects their cultural beliefs, practices, and values. Engage in activities that show cultural exchanges and collaborations that have occurred between different countries or regions. Reflect critically on the positive and negative aspects of cultural globalisation on local communities and the wider global society.
	Technological Globalisation	Reflect on the impact of technology on individuals, communities, and the environment.	Express thoughts and feelings about the role of technology in their own lives and consider ways to balance its use. Participate in activities that promote sustainable practices with technology, such as recycling electronic devices or conserving energy. Show empathy towards individuals or communities who may have limited access to technology or face digital divides.

	Global Governance and Power Structures	Demonstrate awareness of their rights and responsibilities as global citizens.	Engage in activities that promote responsible global citizenship, such as participating in community service projects, supporting charitable causes, or advocating for social and environmental justice.
			Collaborate with peers on projects or activities related to global governance, power structures, and global citizenship.
			Demonstrate a growth mindset and a commitment to lifelong learning as a global citizen
	Migration and Displacement	Reflect on personal attitudes and actions towards migrants and displaced persons.	Demonstrate an increasing ability to empathise with the experiences, challenges, and emotions of migrants and displaced persons.
			Take steps to create a welcoming and inclusive environment, such as initiating conversations, helping newcomers, or participating in activities that foster integration.
		Advocate for the protection of human rights, challenging stereotypes, discrimination, and unfair treatment faced by migrants and displaced persons.	Demonstrate the ability to speak up against stereotypes, discrimination, and unfair treatment of migrants and displaced persons.
			Actively challenge biased remarks or actions and promotes a culture of respect and inclusivity.

	Cultural identity and social harmony	Develop empathy towards individuals from different cultural backgrounds, appreciating the diversity they bring.	Engage in inclusive play and communication, ensuring everyone feels included and valued.
			Act as a positive role model by treating all individuals, regardless of cultural background, with kindness and respect.
		Value the positive and negative effects of cultural homogenisation on individuals, communities, and societies.	Engage in discussions and debates, considering different viewpoints on cultural homogenisation and its implications.
			Communicate their cultural identity confidently and respectfully, recognising its significance while appreciating the cultural identities of others.
	Environmental Justice .	Engage in projects that raise awareness about environmental injustices and encourage positive change	Demonstrate a willingness to learn from their experiences, adapt strategies if necessary, and continue their efforts to address environmental injustices.
			Recognise the ethical implications of environmental injustices and their impact on marginalised communities.

	Labour Rights and Exploitation	Cultivate a sense of fairness and justice by recognising that all individuals deserve equitable treatment in the workplace.	Demonstrate empathy towards individuals who have experienced workplace discrimination or unfair treatment, and understand the impact that this can have on their well-being. Express opinions on the importance of fair and equitable treatment in the workplace, and engage in discussions and activities that promote awareness and understanding of workplace fairness and justice.
	Access to Education and Knowledge.	Recognise the value of lifelong learning and continuous personal development beyond formal education. Engage in constructive dialogue with teachers, parents, and community members to promote collaborative efforts in improving access to education.

GCED PEDAGOGY

Section Four

GCED PEDAGOGY AND ASSESSMENT

GCED is guided by six core pedagogical principles, namely Dialogue and Participation, Holism and Inter-disciplinary, Multi-modal Approach to teaching, Values Formation, Critical Empowerment, and Applicability and Relevance (APCEIU 2018).

Pedagogical Principles of GCED

1. Dialogue and Participation

GCED requires a learning environment where learners and teachers can discuss issues and co-create learning. To become active citizens, learners should become active participants in the learning process. Teachers should engage in dialogue with learners and encourage them to engage in dialogue with one another. This provides opportunity for learners to share their ideas, raise questions, listen to and respect different perspectives, and become empowered to take action to address personal, community, national and global issues.

2. Holism and Inter-disciplinary

Education should be made relevant to the everyday lives of learners by using real-life scenarios and issues as examples when teaching certain topics. Learners have to become aware of the big picture that people and the environment are interconnected. Thus, GCED requires holistic learning or studying issues from many different angles (interdisciplinary) using various ways of learning. For example, teachers should encourage learners not only to interact and dialogue with people from different backgrounds in their local community to explore, understand, and respect diverse perspectives but also help them to understand how different issues are related to one another in the world.

3. Multi – modal approach to teaching

GCED requires teachers to engage learners holistically – the mind, the heart, and the body – this calls for the use different learning strategies that involve the senses such as sight, sound, smell, taste, and touch when teaching. For instance, creative and transformative strategies such as role-play, group discussion, project, field trip, debate, simulation, drama and art facilitate the development of learners' cognitive, socio-emotional, and behavioural skills and competencies.

4. Values Formation

Teachers should not only focus on teaching new facts, knowledge, and information to learners but also help them develop values such as empathy, justice, compassion, respect, and non-violence. Teachers should also be able to teach learners how to examine their values and principles, how to assess their expectations and actions, and how to develop good values and habits. Learners can only make use of the knowledge they learned in class for the common good if they have the right values, attitude, and mindset as promoted by GCED.

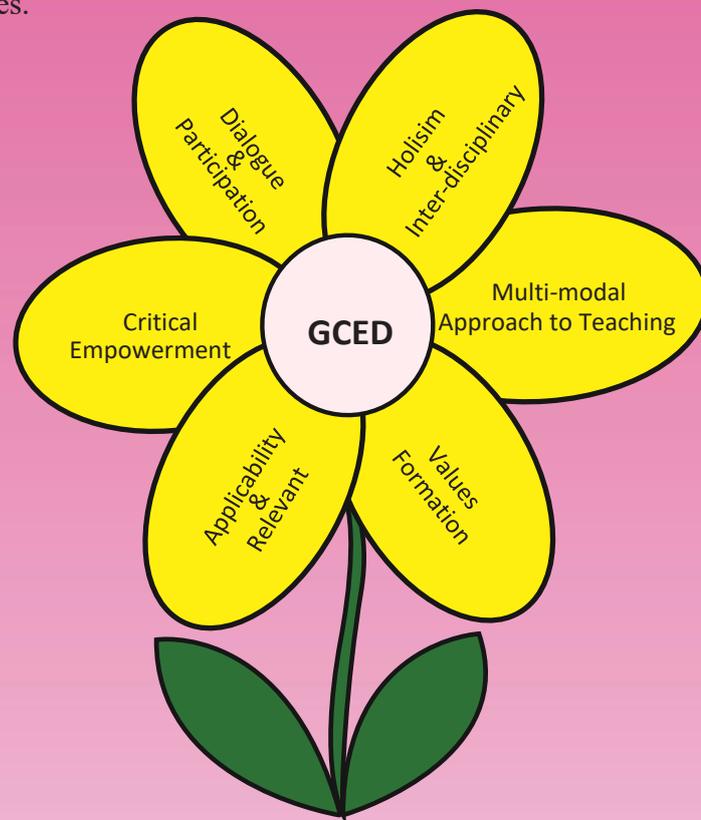

5. Critical Empowerment

The goal of GCED is to empower learners to critically respond to local and global challenges by taking action. Teachers must therefore support learners to gain knowledge about global and global issues so that they will be motivated to use their knowledge, skills, and values to solve problems to transform their local community and the world.

6. Applicability and Relevance

GCED should be applicable and relevant to the context of learners. Learning content should be based on real-life issues and hands-on experiences to help learners to become agents of change. Relevant knowledge and practical experience empower learners to apply what they have learned to their daily lives.

Adapted, GCED OnlineCampus (2019)

Pedagogical Principles of GCED

The GCED pedagogical principles highlight the following:

Inclusivity and Diversity: The method used in the teaching of GCED should embrace diversity and promote inclusion. It should recognise and respect the diversity of learners' backgrounds, perspectives, and experiences, fostering an inclusive and equitable learning environment.

Interdisciplinary Learning: The technique applied in teaching GCED must encourage an interdisciplinary approach to education. It should integrate various subjects and perspectives to help learners understand complex global issues and their interconnectedness.

Critical Thinking: GCED pedagogies emphasise the development of critical thinking skills. Learners are encouraged to analyse information critically, question assumptions, and engage in evidence-based reasoning when exploring global challenges.

Active Learning: Active learning methodologies, such as group discussions, debates, problem-solving, and hands-on projects, are promoted in GCED. This approach encourages students to actively engage with the content and take ownership of their learning.

Experiential Learning: Experiential learning opportunities, such as internships, field trips, and community engagement play a vital role in GCED. These experiences help students apply their knowledge to real-world situations and develop a deeper understanding of global issues.

Ethical and Values-Based Education: GCED pedagogies should encourage the exploration of ethical dilemmas and the development of values such as empathy, respect, tolerance, and social responsibility. It helps learners understand the moral dimensions of global challenges.

Multiple Perspectives: GCED pedagogies promote the exploration of multiple perspectives on global issues. It encourages learners to consider different viewpoints, cultures, and worldviews, fostering a more nuanced understanding of complex problems.

Action and Civic Engagement: GCED goes beyond knowledge acquisition; it encourages students to take action and become active global citizens. This may involve participating in community service, advocacy, or other forms of civic engagement. Hence, pedagogies that promote action and civic engagement should be prioritised.

Global Competence: GCED aims to develop global competence in learners. This includes skills such as intercultural communication, empathy, adaptability, and the ability to work collaboratively across borders. Pedagogies employed must promote these skills.

Sustainability: GCED often incorporates sustainability principles, encouraging students to consider the long-term consequences of their actions on the planet and society and to explore ways to promote sustainable development. Therefore, pedagogies employed by teachers should promote these principles.

Assessment of/for Learning: Effective assessment methods in GCED focus on evaluating not only knowledge, but also skills, attitudes, and values. Assessment should be aligned with the goals of global citizenship education.

Global Citizenship Education is a transformative education that requires the use of transformative pedagogy to develop knowledge, skills, values, and attitudes to prepare learners to engage with the complex challenges of our interconnected world as responsible and informed global citizens. Who can contribute meaningfully to a more just, peaceful, and sustainable world.

What is Transformative Pedagogy?

Transformative pedagogy is an approach to teaching and learning that aims to challenge and transform social inequalities and injustices by empowering learners to become agents of change in their communities and beyond. It is based on the belief that education is not just about the acquisition of knowledge and skills, but also about the development of critical consciousness, social awareness, and a sense of responsibility towards the world.

At its core, transformative pedagogy involves creating a learning environment that is inclusive, participatory, and democratic, where learners are encouraged to engage in critical reflection, dialogue, and action. It is not just about transmitting information, but also about fostering deep understanding and critical thinking and empowering learners to apply what they have learned to real-world problems.

Transformative pedagogy is often associated with the work of Brazilian educator Paulo Freire, who argued that education should be a process of liberation, in which learners are empowered to challenge and transform social inequalities and injustices.

According to Freire, transformative pedagogy involves a process of “conscientisation” in which learners become critically aware of their social, political, and economic contexts, and are empowered to take action to change them.

With transformative pedagogy, learners are empowered to become active and engaged citizens who are capable of challenging and transforming social inequalities and injustices. It is a powerful tool for promoting social justice, equity, and democracy, and a critical component of building a more just and sustainable world.

In brief, “Transformative pedagogies create concrete opportunities for learners to identify and reflect on interconnectedness and shared responsibilities, opening up opportunities and spaces to get to know the self, one another, explore each other’s views, experience moments together, challenges ideas about the other, and create connections and relations. Ultimately, this pedagogical approach aims to provide the opportunity for learners to act collectively to achieve common goals, build on their individual strengths and appreciate the diversity around them” UNESCO-IICBA (2017, P26)

Key Principles and Practices of Transformative Pedagogy

The key principles and practices of transformative pedagogy include the following:

Critical Reflection

Transformative pedagogy emphasises the importance of critical reflection, which involves examining one’s own assumptions and biases, as well as the social, political, and economic contexts in which learning takes place. Critical reflection helps learners to develop a deeper understanding of complex issues and to identify potential solutions.

Dialogue and Collaboration

Transformative pedagogy emphasises the importance of dialogue and collaboration which involves creating a learning environment that is inclusive, participatory, and democratic. Learners are encouraged to engage in meaningful conversations with their peers and teachers, to share their experiences and perspectives, and to collaborate on projects and initiatives.

Action and Social Change

Transformative pedagogy emphasises the importance of acting and promoting social change which involves empowering learners to become agents of change in their communities and beyond. Learners are encouraged to identify social problems and develop strategies and solutions to address them.

Empowerment and Agency

Transformative pedagogy emphasises the importance of empowerment and agency. This involves empowering learners to take control of their own learning and to become active and engaged citizens. Learners are encouraged to develop skills and knowledge that will enable them to act and make a difference in the world.

Table 9: Key Features of Transformative Pedagogy

1. Focus: The primary focus is to bring about personal and societal transformation. It aims to challenge and change the existing social, cultural, and political structures that perpetuate inequality and injustice. 2. Objectives: The main objective is to empower learners to critically examine and challenge oppressive systems, prejudices, and inequities. It aims to cultivate social consciousness, promote social justice, and inspire action for positive change. 3. Approach: Transformative pedagogy adopts a critical and reflective approach, encouraging learners to question assumptions, analyse power dynamics, and challenge dominant narratives. It often involves participatory and experiential learning methods that engage students in real-world issues and encourage activism. 4. Outcomes: The desired outcome is personal and social transformation, including increased awareness of social justice issues, critical thinking skills, empathy, and the ability to take action to address inequalities and injustice.

It is important to note that while transformative pedagogy may incorporate creative elements, not all creative pedagogy necessarily leads to transformative outcomes. Teachers are encouraged to progress from creative pedagogy towards transformative pedagogy to transform the learning environment and the learner into an agent of change.

Assessing GCED Skills/Learning Outcomes

Assessment is key in the teaching and learning process. The National Pre-Tertiary Learning Assessment Framework (NPLAF) clearly espouses the purposes of assessment as presented in Figure 9.

However, the integration of Global Citizenship Education (GCED) in regular teaching and learning activities requires that the teacher consciously takes steps to assess the three domains of GCED, namely:

1. Cognitive
2. Socio-emotional
3. Behavioural

It is worth noting that an assessment of the cognitive domain is exhaustively dealt with in the various assessment documents available to the teacher. The focus of this section is to throw more light on some assessment techniques that can be employed by the teacher to assess the socio-emotional and behavioural domains of GCED.

What Do We Assess?

The focus of the assessment of the GCED component in the lesson should be on the learning outcomes that are linked to the GCED themes (Refer to Table 2).

Within these learning outcomes are specific socio-emotional and behavioural tenets that learners are supposed to develop (Refer to Tables 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7).

How Do We Assess?

How do we assess the socio-emotional and behavioural traits of a learner?

According to McMillan (2007), there are three main techniques for assessing the socio-emotional and behavioural traits of a learner. These are:

1. Teacher Observation
2. Student Self-Report
3. Peer Ratings

It is important to note that since socio-emotional learning is difficult to observe directly, they are mostly deduced from behaviour or what students say about themselves and others. This implies that an assessment of the trait should be carried out consistently over time and multiple techniques should be employed to ensure accuracy and triangulation.

It is also important for the teacher to have separate tools for individual learners and the entire class if possible. This is to help monitor and distinguish group behaviour from individual behaviour.

Teacher Observation

Observation is the technique of watching learner behaviour and attitude before, during and after an instructional session. This requires a conscious effort on the side of the teacher to detect the intentional and unintentional socio-emotional traits being exhibited by a learner during the period of instruction. This is normally carried out by an Observation Guide or Checklist.

General Steps to Follow When Doing Teacher Observation

1. Determine how specific socio-emotional and behavioural trait relates to the learning indicator and outcome.
2. Define the trait clearly.

For example: Tolerate different views. This means that the learner should allow others to share their ideas even though they might be at variance with hers/his.

3. Make a list of all behaviour and actions that depict the trait both in negative and positive ways as shown in Table 8.

Table 8: Sample Observation check list to assess Tolerate different views.

Positive	Negative
Allows others to make their point	Interrupts when others are speaking
Gently agrees or disagrees with opposing views	Becomes angry when others disagree with him/her
Listens to opposing views	Does not pay attention to opposing view

4. Initiate the GCED activity during the lesson and take note of all the traits being exhibited by learners during the GCED activity session of the lesson.
5. After the activity, classify the observed behaviour into positive and negative.
6. Stress the positive traits and condemn the negative traits explaining the need not to engage in those negative traits.

Student Self-Report

This normally comes in two ways.

1. The teacher has a casual conversation or interview with the student with the aim of consciously targeting the learner's thought processes on a specific issue during the GCED session of the instructional process.

For example, to promote cultural diversity and to instil in the learner the trait of respect for diversity, the teacher creates an activity in between instructional sessions and requests learners to share experiences or invites learners randomly after a lesson to enquire from them how they feel about the activity. In doing this, the teacher should have his/her focus on the trait.

2. The teacher can also design a simple questionnaire for learners to respond to which will be aimed at eliciting specific traits from them.

There are two formats of questionnaires that can be used.

(i) Constructed response format.

The constructed response format is a straightforward approach that requires the student to respond to a simple question or statement intentionally asked to bring out a specific trait.

For example, what do you do when you do not agree with someone?

Another way to apply the constructed response format is to ask students to write an essay that focuses on a specific attribute.

For example, write an essay on how to relate to a person who does not belong to your religion.

(ii) Selected response format: this can take three different forms.

(a). Rating Scale

A rating scale is a closed-ended question that is used to represent a learner's feedback in a comparative form for a specific socio-emotional trait or attribute.

For example, how do you rate your ability or willingness to tolerate opinions or behaviour that you dislike or disagree with?

Sample Rating Scale

Self-awareness	I do this ...
	Often	Sometimes	Never
I show interest in others as unique individuals and invite them to share about their lives.
I set aside time for to reflect on what I am learning and make connections to life.
I try to identify my strength and weaknesses to come out with the best in me.

Social awareness	I do this ...
	Often	Sometimes	Never
I can tolerate opinions that I disagree with
I can tolerate behaviours that I dislike

(b). Semantic Differential Scale

The semantic differential scale asks a learner to rate socio-emotional traits on a standard set of bipolar adjectives (i.e., with opposite meanings), each representing a seven-point scale (Osgood, et al., 1957).

Example:

SEMANTIC DIFFERENTIAL SCALE
Bad							x		Good
Cruel								x	Kind
Unpleasant							x		Pleasant
Unfair						x			Fair
Dirty							x		Clean
Intolerant						x			Tolerant
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7

The teacher develops this and shares it with learners to respond to the extent they can relate to the attributes in the scale.

(c). Checklist

For example: Being tolerant

Attributes	True	False
I accept that people are different from me.
I do not lose my calmness when I face people who are rude to me.
I forgive people when they offend me because we are all not perfect.

Peer Ratings

Peer ratings can be carried out using two approaches. This is when learners are asked to rate each other in relation to specific traits. There are two methods of conducting peer ratings.

- (i) Guess who approach – learners are presented with short word pictures depicting a variety of socio-emotional and behavioural traits and learners are asked to identify classmates who exhibit such traits.

(Insert a picture of a Christian and Muslim shaking hands)

- (ii) Socio-metric approach – this is used to establish a learner’s level of social acceptance. Learners can be asked to rate the extent to which they like to interact with a specific classmate. This is normally carried out on a scale of (1 = Not at all; 5 = To a very high extent).

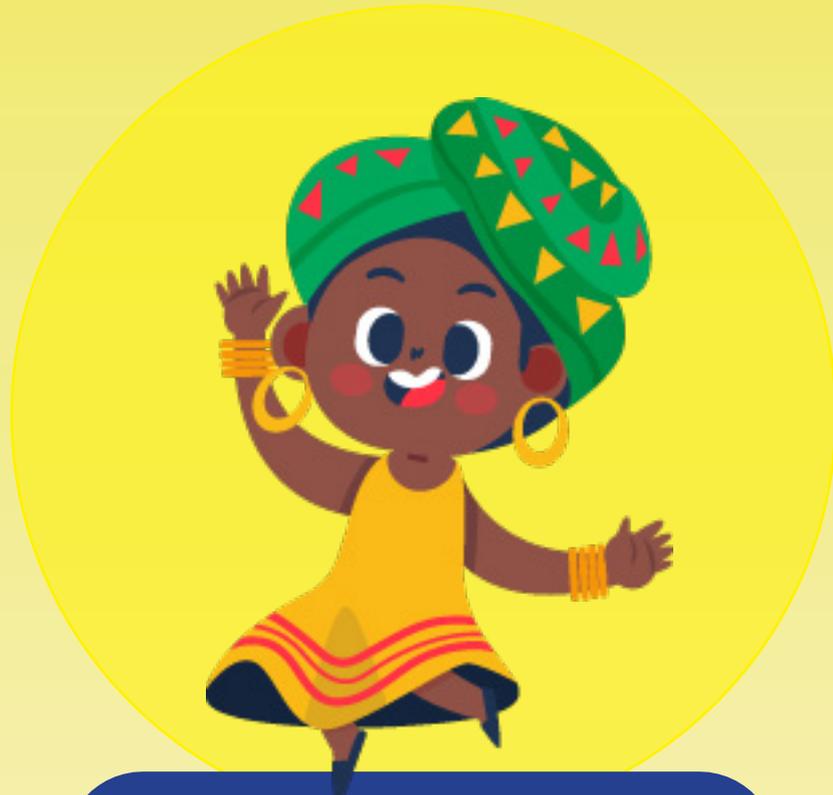

For e.g. Rate the extent to which you will play with Class mate A because he/she is respectful.

Not at all	Somehow	To some extent	To a high extent	To a very high extent

This could include initiatives such as anti-bullying campaigns, peer mentoring programmes, or activities that encourage inclusivity and understanding among diverse groups.
SUB-THEME 4	PEACE EDUCATION AND ADVOCACY	LEARNING ACTIVITIES/EXPERIENCES
LEARNING OUTCOMES	LEARNING INDICATORS	CLASS 4	CLASS 5	CLASS 6
Promote active advocacy for peaceful solutions.	Identify opportunities for promoting peace within the school or local community	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Show images of national leaders without text and identify and talk about their roles in peaceful coexistence. Each group works with a different topic (peace clubs, traditions, stereotypes etc.). Re-mix groups with one planted “expert” on each topic, who now has to teach his new group. Each learner debriefs the wisdom of the previous group to his/her new group. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Write topics for peace advocacy. Partners read the essay and write a three-paragraph response: the first paragraph outlines the strengths of the essay; the second paragraph discusses the essay’s problems, and the third paragraph is a description of what the partner would focus on in revision. In groups role play how to settle a dispute in class by educating the parties involved. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Have a community debate on the destructive consequences of violence paying attention to the root causes. Write an article to publish in a newspaper to educate the public on the benefit and importance of peaceful resolution.

GCED THEME 3: RESPECT FOR DIVERSITY

SUGGESTED GLOBAL CITIZENSHIP EDUCATION TRANSFORMATIVE ACTIVITIES
SUB-THEME 1 LEARNING OUTCOMES	CULTURAL DIVERSITY LEARNING INDICATORS	CLASS 4	CLASS 5
Appreciate and respect the different cultural groups	Engage in activities (i.e. tolerance, open-mindedness, curiosity) that promote cultural diversity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Use 'Family Name Game' to promote respect for different cultural groups. Undertake a field trip to eateries in the school and in the community to find out about other cultures' foods, songs and dressing to promote open-mindedness. Visit: (i) eateries or restaurants for different food types (ii) chief's palace or cultural groups for different local songs. (iii) chief's palace, dressmakers' shops, observe different costumes of cultural groups etc. Using 'Think Pad' strategy (piece of paper) write how they feel about what they heard and saw during the field trip. Design posters, flyers, or message cards to inform people in the school, home and community about the need to embrace other cultures' foods, songs and dressing. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Role-play/dramatise other cultures' rites, festivals and folktales/stories to promote tolerance. 		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Discuss artifacts that reflects various cultural background or heritage. E.g. the significance and history of the artifacts and how they relate to the target culture. Write how they feel when learning a culture different from their own and share such feelings with their peers in school, families or community members.

		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Organise events in school during co-curricular periods to portray different cultures and speak on the need to embrace culture.
Share real life experiences of cultural diversity encounters (e.g. food, festivals, dances, clothes etc.)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Using 'Make it Personal' in a whole class session/ small groups/pairs, take turns to talk about real life experiences or encounters with foods of other cultures to promote tolerance of cultural diversity. Brainstorm on the experiences shared and come up with a visual presentation (pictures or sketches) to describe thoughts/ideas shared. Pick one food item that you like and educate the public on its relevance. Using illustrations and diagrams show in steps, actions to take to promote the eating of the food by other cultures as well as its nutritional value. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Using 'Flipped classroom' watch short videos or skits/listen to short audios recorded by peers or others or pictures on their personal experiences with festivals of other cultures to promote cultural tolerance. Write down the key take-aways in the videos/audios/pictures for group discussion. Using 'Floor Talk' strategy a group representative explains the group output to the whole class. Design posters or flyers re-telling the audios/videos in your own way to educate the school and community on the need to embrace other festivals. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Using circle time, share real life experiences on clothes and dances of other cultures to promote the desire to learn or know something about them. Design or select clothes of any culture of your preference for a dance and fashion show to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> educate the public on the choice of fabric, origin of clothes, style, purpose, and users educate the populace on the importance of using dance as a tool to showcase one's culture.

Reflect and talk about ways to overcome negative cultural encounters

- Use 'Instructor storytelling' strategy or watch short videos/ skits/scenarios/pictures on a negative encounter with other cultures. Reflect and talk about the consequences of these encounters and the impact of the actions of the individuals. Collaborate with peers from different cultural backgrounds to solve such negative encounters in the class/school/community as a project to overcome such negative encounters using social media (audios, songs, and art works).
- Create a recipe book through collaboration to celebrate cultural diversity while promoting sustainable practices and cultural preservation.
- Collaborate to create a recipe book to showcase local foods from different cultural backgrounds.

- Employ 'optimist/pessimist' approach or organise inter-columns/class(es) debate on the topic 'It is good to overcome negative cultural encounters to promote cultural diversity':
 - Create an awareness campaign material (flyers, posters, banners, hand-outs, placards etc.) to educate the school and community to develop positive attitudes for cultural diversity.
 - Organise a fashion show to celebrate cultural diversity.
 - Organise a cultural art exhibition to celebrate cultural diversity.

- Use 'critical reflection' or reflect to think-pair-share the impact of personal choices and actions on different cultural groups using case studies/pictures/real life experiences.
 - Organise a school/community advocacy campaign to educate the school and community on the need to develop positive attitudes for cultural diversity.
 - Take action to sensitise the public on how to overcome negative encounters by creating advocacy campaign materials such as flyers, posters, gazette, newsletter, essay, videos, and podcasts.

Strategies

Proposed Strategies for GCED
Delivery in Ghanaian Schools

Proposed Strategies for GCED Delivery in Ghanaian Schools

These strategies were the outcome of a stakeholder consultation on GCED to determine relevant strategies for GCED delivery in Ghanaian school. The strategies have been categorised into Curriculum level, school level and classroom level strategies. These are to be contextualized and adapted based on the specific school/learning environment.

Table 8: Proposed Strategies for GCED Delivery in Ghanaian Schools

Strategies	Curriculum Level	School Level	Classroom Level
Short term	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> As part of lessons, teachers should identify indicators and create activities that reflect GCED Core competencies should inculcate GCED in learners Cross-curricular/transversal links should reflect GCED 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Engaging in sporting activities Celebration of National and International Days Excursions Celebration of Diversities Club Activities: Civic Education Clubs, STEM, Performing Arts (Debate, Dance, Music, Drama, Art and Graffiti) School Competitions and quizzes or GCED Olympiads School gatherings on selected days 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Organising workshops for teachers purposely for GCED Engaging in activities/games/ drama/poetry/dramatisation/ role-play Creative pedagogies Group presentations Talking points/news times Weekly role models in the classroom Using reward systems to promote global citizenship Poster sessions/talking walls/ forum on GCED
Medium term	Mapping should be done by teacher on GCED concepts in the curriculum	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Games based on the idea of gamification Time with GCED ambassadors Watching NaCCA-approved documentaries on GCED Community service or volunteer service Celebration of diversities School competitions and quizzes or GCED Olympiads School gatherings on selected days Create recitations that hinge on GCED ideals Learners should adopt and own a GCED ideal 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Inter-class competitions on GCED e.g. debates, quizzes etc. Open days to showcase GCED Creating a slot for GCED ambassadors Allotting a time on the timetable for GCED

Long term	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Curriculum review should be done to make GCED a stand-alone subject • GCED to be made an examinable subject if possible • TLRs on GCED should be made available for teachers at all times • Training and effective monitoring should be done during GCED roll out/ implementation 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Games based on the idea of gamification • Excursions • Watching NaCCA-approved documentaries on GCED • Community service or volunteer service • GCED champion activities at the community level 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Undertaking GCED projects • Organising conferences, seminars, durbars, festivals to showcase GCED

GCED, or Global Citizenship Education, aims to cultivate attitudes and behaviors that promote understanding, respect, and cooperation among people worldwide, as well as environmental stewardship. The developed resource pack provides facilitators with guidance on integrating GCED themes, such as cultural diversity, human rights, and sustainable development, into activities. By emphasizing core values such as empathy, tolerance, and responsibility, learners are encouraged to embrace these principles and apply them in their interactions with others and their approach to environmental conservation, ultimately fostering harmony and unity on a global scale.

The resource pack serves as a valuable tool for primary school teachers, providing them with practical guidance and resources to integrate global citizenship education (GCED) into their classroom activities. By incorporating GCED themes, values, and skills into their lessons, teachers can help students develop a deeper understanding of global issues, cultivate empathy and respect for diversity, and learn how to take action to address local and global challenges. The resource pack offers teachers exemplars, lesson plans, and strategies for effective delivery of GCED, empowering them to create transformative learning experiences that prepare students to become responsible global citizens. Ultimately, the resource pack enables teachers to play a pivotal role in shaping the attitudes, behaviors, and perspectives of students towards creating a more inclusive, peaceful, and sustainable world.
